May is Better Hearing & Speech Month

Nearly 40 million people in the United States today have hearing loss. Most of them are part of America's current workforce. Hearing loss affects people of all ages. In fact, a 2008 study found that the prevalence of hearing loss among younger adults, specifically those in their 20s and 30s, is increasing.

Fortunately, for the vast majority of people with hearing loss, hearing aids can help. Eight out of 10 hearing aid users say they're satisfied with the changes that have occurred in their lives as a direct result of their hearing aids.

When people with even mild hearing loss use hearing aids, they often improve their job performance, enhance their communication skills, increase their earnings potential, improve their professional and interpersonal relationships, stave off depression, and enhance control over their lives and better their quality of life.

Because most doctors don't include hearing health as a routine part of annual exams, it's important to ask to have your hearing tested so visit one of our audiologists today! Once you reach middle-age, it makes sense to include hearing tests as part of your routine annual care.

May is Better Hearing and Speech Month

Be an advocate for your child's hearing! Parents & GrandParents usually suspect a loss before anyone else. Make an appointment with an audiologist today. Early diagnosis and intervention can give your child the best chance for strong academic achievement & positive social and emotional development. Show your child that you value your own hearing. Use ear protection when you mow the lawn or use noisy tools. If earbuds or headphones must be used, keep the volume down and limit the amount of time you use them.

Call the office today to schedule a hearing evaluation. You'll be protecting more than just your hearing.....

"Erica,

My new Resound hearing aids are very comfortable and my husband really appreciates them as much as I do."
